HOUSE LAUDS M'DONALD CABINET

Chatter than he used to be, and just as bland, Colonel E. M. House returned from Europe today aboard the Concord liner Scotia.

Contrary to his custom, he discussed his experiences abroad with the utmost frankness, and passed judgment on governments and men without restraint.

Britain's government today, he said, is as able and scholarly as any that ever presided over the destinies of the empire.

He spoke particularly of Snowden and Haldane as honest, capable and

Pawtucket Textile Workers
Prepare to Fight the 10
Per Cent Wage Cut

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 15.—Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America, arrived here today to handle the situation created by the announcement of wage cuts in the Jencks mills in this city, Manville and Woonsocket.

"I have not come here to take off my coat and cry," he said. "Whether the employees strike or not is up to themselves. Strike votes will be taken this week."

The Jencks mills are putting into force a 10 per cent wage reduction, affecting thousands of wage earners.

President McMahon's statement today was as follows:

"If the textile workers in the Jencks mills decide to strike, we will make their decision this week."

Off sufficient numbers vote to fight, the fight is on. National organizers of the union are at the mill gates today. They will put the proposition up to the men. If they fight they will have the undivided support of the United Textile Workers of America and President Goovers of the A. F. of L.

Helicopter, in Test, Proves It Can Lift 220 Pounds

Moulshieff, France, Sept. 15.—The success achieved by Colonel Moulshieff, the French Engineer, in winning the 40,000 franc prize for weight lifting with his helicopter is but a phase in the experiments he has been making with this type of machine.

The helicopter used in the official test lifted 220 pounds to a height of one meter in one minute and remained in that position for another minute. Later it exceeded this height with a still greater weight.

Moulshieff had made vertical and circular flights. During the three flights made in the official test the stability of the machine was found to be perfect. What was shown to be possible at a height of three feet was equally so at thirty feet or more.

POLICEMAN SHOT BY YOUTH

Guilty Conscience Believed to Have Led to Act; Officer
Dying at Hospital

A young man, 24, turned his fire on Reserve Officer Robert Fitzgerald of the Waltham police, who was shot three times early today by a man he surprised in the entrance of a Main street store.

Fitzgerald is battling for life at the Waltham Hospital. Two of the bullets pierced his left hand. The third lodged itself in his breast. He is married and the father of four children. His wife is about to become a mother again.

In the belief of the Waltham police, the policeman's assailant, because of a guilty conscience for some lawless deed, became terror-stricken when he saw the officer, and shot.

STOPPED BY OFFICER.

The man was hatless and carried a light coat. He dropped the coat and gripped his head. A short time after the shooting a patrolman in Belmont stopped a young man who was hurrying through the streets.

"Where are you going?" asked the Belmont policeman.

"Home," returned the young man. "Oh—go ahead," the officer said.

Later the policeman told his superior he believed the youth's description answered that of the man who shot Policeman Fitzgerald.

DESCRIPTION BROADCAST.

A grip dropped by the assailant contained a bottle of whisky brand, a white broom and a pencil. On the grip and the coat the police pin their hope of tracing the shooter.

A general alarm and a description of the man have been sent through Greater Boston and a man hunt is on.

Fitzgerald believes he wounded the other man. He saw him stagger. A freight train was slowed at Braintree. Crossed a bridge over a river, was killed off and Inspector Tracy visited Boston this afternoon in search of members of the Irish crew, who may have a description of the deed.

Fitzgerald, who is serving his probationary period, was walking down Main street, near Lyman, when he saw a man crouching in the doorway of the Conkey grocery store.

An Fitzgerald approached the doorway of the store, the stranger

Gloucester Woman to Visit Royal Family in Druse

Gloucester, Sept. 15.—Gloucester today is busy trying to find the kingdom of Druse on the East.

This is because Mrs. John C. Lee, noted traveler, and wife of a Gloucester clergyman, is on her way to Druse on the East.

Those with a big idea and love of adventure have been looking for the Druse in the East since 1891.

Mrs. Lee's acquaintance with the royal family comes through her husband, who was educated at the University of Cambridge, England, and who was a member of the Druse family.

She and her father had been in the Druse family since 1891.

SCHOOL HEADS AT ODDS OVER EVERETT GIRL

A disagreement between the principals of two schools is all that holds up the settlement of the difficulty between Rev. P. H. Storms, pastor of the colored Independent Church in Everett, and school officials over alleged discrimination against his daughter.

Storms today said Superintendent of Schools Pauline Whitney had backed down on his demand that Storms' eleven-year-old daughter, be transferred from the Central School to the Alfred N. Palmer School.

The difficulty now rests on whether the daughter will have to take an extra year's work if she enters the seventh grade at the Central School, as Principal Chubb declares.

Until this is settled, the girl herself is peacefully seated in a section in the hall at the Central School, unattended by principal or teachers.

BALDNESS DUE TO NEGLIGENCE, SAYS EXPERT

Declares Any Man Can Raise Crop of Hair if Patient Enough

No matter how long we pour male hair and cherish a pet grief, alone comes an expert finally and knocks it into a cocked hat as not only silly, but senseless.

Prof. Lawrence Dr. Rudolph Martin, one of our best hair experts, went to the convention of the National Hair Society, held in New York, where he told a number of men in the audience that no man need be told to beat that right to their face, with possible exception.

It seems, according to Dr. Martin, that even an old spot of two years' duration can be coaxed into a luxuriant flourish again, if the party below the dome has sufficient perseverance and truck gardeners' instinct to bring out the crop.

If a man persists in neglecting the pale moonbeams or the tint of the bright footlights from his personal shiny skull, the fault rests on his own head, in a word—take it from

LEOPOLD TURNS TO RELIGION FOR SOLACE

Slayer of Franks Listens Earnestly to Sermon on God and Mammon

Leopold, Ill., Sept. 15. (Universal)—The one-time atheist, eyes raised to heaven, singing head bowed, fervently repeating the Lord's Prayer, sufferer, listening earnestly to a sermon on the text: "You cannot serve God and Mammon." Nathan Leopold, Jr., the devout.

That was the picture, the transformation, in the chapel in the State penitentiary here, where prisoners may come on Sunday mornings to find sanctuary from the humdrum of prison routine or the torments of conscience.

Richard A. Loeb also had voluntarily gone to chapel and sung with equal reverence when the services opened with the hymn "Oh, Mother, Pray For Me."

GOB AND MAMMON. "You must choose," they heard the priest, Father Leontine, "between God and Mammon. You cannot serve God and follow pleasure."

"I don't know the dawn that wakes you from your dreams here and brings you back to the reality of prison life, there is a dawn that wakes you to truth. It is conscience, the dawn of the soul."

Throughout the service Nathan remained intent upon the words and made no sound except a faint gasp and a low murmur as though fascinated with a new experience.

It is now about his only break in hard labor, his only opportunity for PERSONALITY REVERSED.

In another way, Leopold manifested a discarding of the old theories of life. He became and receiving permission to write a letter to his mother, Mr. Foreman. He indicated a long message, which, according to the prison censors, showed a reversal of his personality.

He assured his relatives that his condition was improved by the transfer from the county jail in Chicago and intended to try to get along in the penitentiary.

"I am asking permission to write this because of myself," he said, "Warden Whitman, 'but because of my people. They will be worried.'"

Will Sue Actor

Diana Gray Says That Wilfred Lytell Wooded, Then Spurned Her

New York, Sept. 15.—Diana Gray, ex-Pollie girl, says Wilfred Lytell, actor and brother of Bert Lytell, film star, won her heart three years ago, promised to take her for his bride after he divorced his wife—and then jilted her and married a Lila Lee, film and stage ingenue, not the wife of James Kirkwood, the actor.

So Diana is peeved and threatens to sue for breach of promise. She says she will sue because to-morrow and says nothing can make her change her mind.

She tells a story of crossed loves. It is the old story of the woman scorned. And Diana is playing the part to perfection. She says in one breath that she still loves Wilfred, her "Billy," as she calls him, and in the next she cries she will have revenge.

"There have been whisperings; I want everybody to know the truth now," said Diana today. Her soft brown eyes closed, her lips became firm, set.

ROMANCE OF SIXTEEN. "Ours was a romance of sixteen. I was a child, playing in Trinity with Wilma Lackay, when I met Billy," she said. "Then I learned to like him—and he said we would be married. I learned he was married—had had two wives, and that he had been married more than ten years."

"I went to Europe to try to forget my mother went with me. I came back—and found I hadn't forgotten—and couldn't. So I saw Billy some more. But Billy's brother, said Billy was a fool not to get it over with me—if he loved me the way he said he did, to marry me."

"Billy said he would marry me. He said he'd get a divorce. And he did—and then he married Lila Lee. He's playing the lead now at the Lyric Theatre in Atlanta, Ga., with Forbes Revue."

The Beneficent Circle

A generation ago the last operation in a New England factory we have heard about consisted of stamping the product "made in Germany."

You may question the morality of that procedure—but you must also recognize the reason. It was because a large part of the New England public refused to believe that their own people could make the kind of goods they wanted.

"New England Week" is a dramatic setting of the stage to focus attention on two phases of your relation to New England industries.

In the First Place—The great group of producers and distributors seek the opportunity to demonstrate to you that New England merchandise is superior.

That general word "superior" does not, in every case, set forth the complete facts.

Indeed, in instance after instance, the New England product is the best of its kind in the world. Therefore when you are interested enough to prefer New England-made goods, you are generally certain to get better quality and better value.

In the Second Place—You are a resident of New England and doubtless a good citizen. If you have traveled through New England cities and noticed the thousands of factories lining the railroads, the rivers and the store fronts you will understand that literally billions of dollars must be invested in our industries; you will realize that in the volume and value of production depends the circulation of money, the size and number of payrolls, the number of families and homes and their needs and desires—the satisfying of which is business.

When you spend a dollar for New England goods that dollar circulates throughout New England. Instead of the "vicious circle" metaphor we meet with so often we have in the New England dollar spent in New England the beneficent circle.

New England must produce goods you want at the price you want to pay. The law of economics cannot be stayed. But when New England does produce such goods, why not back up New England and buy them?

"To know New England Products is to want New England Products."

An exhibit from the Sorois factory, which produces shoes for every civilized country, every pair of which is made in New England.

A group of lovely silk lingerie, specially made by a New England designer of exquisite undergarments for women.

A Vania Furze will be in attendance in the Infant's Store to show mothers the superior advantages of Vania New England made baby garments.

Fifty-nine years ago John Shepard, a New Englander, founded The Shepard Stores.

Today, John Shepard, Jr., his son, is President; John Shepard, 3d, his grandson, Vice President.

During this half century and more our time has been spent in bending every effort to anticipate the needs of New England and New Englanders. We have had and seized during these years certainly hundreds, perhaps thousands of opportunities to come to the aid of New England projects and enterprises.

To boost New England; to provide the New England public with New England products; to play our part in New England activities—has been and is today not so much a matter of policy with us as it is a natural inherited attitude of mind, as characteristic of The Shepard Stores as our sense of honor and service.

We are not only heart and soul for New England—we are heart and soul New England, and we realize that there are hundreds of thousands of individuals who are likewise made.

Together all things are possible for New Englanders—and Together We Can Make New England Week Carry Throughout the World

HOPPER LEADS COMIC OPERA REVIVAL

Reproduction of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" Entertains Boston Audience

It is Gilbert & Sullivan time again in Boston. De Wolf Hopper and an excellent supporting cast of singers are giving "The Mikado" at the Boston Opera House.

The initial performance, Saturday night, enticed the large audience which was in attendance.

Arthur Coningham was the Mikado. Forrest Huff, Nanki Poo, the Emperor's son, and Herbert Warren, Poo-Loah.

Others in the cast were Ethel Walker, Bernice Merham, Ethel Clark and Henry Kelly.

Sullivan's melody and Gilbert's nonsense have not lost their charm even to these days of jazz, and "The Mikado" is one of the best of their creations.

During the present season the Hopper organization will present "Clowns of Normandy," "Gaieties," "The Prince of Pilsen," "Waltzes," and "Paddy."

Miss Margaret Corlies Makes 'Att-Lea House' Garden Spot

By BETTY ALDEN

ONE of the North Shore's most faithful gardeners is Miss Margaret Corlies, whose summer home at Magnolia is known as "Att-Lea House."

Not a blossom reveals its exquisite beauty but what Miss Corlies has created out of the ground with expert skill.

Just now "Att-Lea House" abounds with lilies, one of the most gorgeous and stately members of the flower kingdom.

Miss Corlies, whose winter home is in Philadelphia, actually looks after every individual bud. Besides being a devoted gardener, Miss Corlies is one of the shore's most charming hostesses, and several members of the younger set have been entertained at "Att-Lea House" during the past month.

HELPS STAGE BIG EVENT

An annual affair held at Newport which always attracts a large gallery is the modeling contest held at Bailey's Beach.

The contestants are members of Summer colony's younger set, whose duties parents never fail to make their way to Bailey's Beach for the occasion.

This year one of the winners was Miss Ethel Woodward, daughter of the William Woodward, who, with Miss Rosa Winslow, won the second prize cup offered by Mrs. Lewis G. Morris. Their subject was a schooner under full sail.

Mrs. W. Woodward, by the way, was on the committee for the Thursday afternoon dances at the Newport Casino during the season. The dance last Thursday, with Conrad's Orchestra playing, wrote this for this season's series.

These afternoon affairs are popular with the younger members of the colony at Little Rhody's "watering place. They are primarily for the sub-teenagers and their cavaliers, though others also are invited.

4 SOLDIERS DIE IN OIL TANK EXPLOSION

Big Property Loss in Fire on Waterfront of Monterey, Cal.

Monterey, Cal., Sept. 15.—The fire started when lightning struck a 55,000 barrel tank of the Associated Oil Company, causing the death of four soldiers stationed at the Presidio at Monterey, injuring many others, and damaging hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property today spread to another large tank. Flaming oil poured down into the bay, forming a sheet of five 400 feet from shore.

Cavalrymen were ordered to run and the order had scarcely been transmitted when a flood of flames, of swept down upon the warehouse.

The fire spread rapidly to surrounding tanks of gasoline owned by the Associated and Standard Oil Companies, causing a number of explosions.

Hundreds of men, including anti-air, who attempted to prevent the

Drowning of Boy From Wharf
Stirs Residents to Call a Meeting of Protest

Around at the drowning of five-year-old Felix Karwoska and past tragedies through the medium of Chelsea's rickety wharves in the vicinity of Pembroke street, residents are planning a mass meeting to demand protection.

Little Felix, while playing on one of the wharves broke through a decayed plank to his death in the harbor. He had been left in charge of older children while his mother, Mrs. Josephine Karwoska of No. 43 Broadway, went to visit her sister at a hospital.

Body of Physician Found on Office Floor in New York;
Woman Also Victim

New York, Sept. 15 (Unsworth).—A second strange death in the fashionable apartment house at No. 340 West Fifty-fifth street was revealed when Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Charles Norris and police officials discovered the body of Dr. George W. Partridge, forty-five years old, a prominent surgeon, lying fully dressed on a couch in his office on the ground floor of the building.

Death was believed by the officials to be due to coal gas, which they now suspect was also responsible for the death of Mrs. James L. Joustra, whose body, with her unconscious husband, Dr. James L. Joustra, was discovered the night previous.

Dr. Norris and his assistant, Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, were performing an autopsy at the morgue on the body of Mrs. Joustra to determine the cause of death when they detected the presence of gas in the abdomen. This led them to the belief that death had been caused by gas poisoning.

Dr. Joustra, who was taken to Reception Hospital and later to the City Hospital on Welfare Island, is still in a state of coma.

Bobbed Bandit, 80, Goes on Warpath With Hatchet

London, Sept. 15.—If the American bobbed haired bandit club doesn't impose an age limit on its members Mrs. Alice Margaret Hawkins, aged eighty, is a candidate for admission.

Mrs. Hawkins bobbed her own hair with a pair of scissors, bought herself a false face, took the family hatchet, and went out looking for plunder. She invaded a shop in the little town of Weybridge, drove the shopkeeper outside and when the errand boy failed to move fast enough to suit her, Mrs. Hawkins chased him upstairs. "It's all right," she informed the policeman, "I'm a member of the royal family, and own the town."

WILBUR TELLS OF BIG SAVING IN U. S. NAVY

Arms Pact Cut $225,000,000
Off Cost, Besides $40,000,000
in Annual Upkeep

Los Angeles, Sept. 15.—Scrapping American warships in accordance with the Washington disarmament pact will mean an immediate saving to the government of $225,000,000, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur said today.

The sum mentioned covered only construction cost. It would have cost an additional $40,000,000 annually to have been ordered scrapped. The navy's total expenditures, he said, even of them practically new, which averaged around $350,000,000.

Glenwood Ranges & Heaters

made in New England for New England Homes

GOLD MEDAL
Glenwood
A complete combination range for coal and gas. With Glenwood Robertson Oven Heat Control.

Glenwood heaters are made in three types: Single-Pipe, the 3-Way System, and the standard Pipe Furnace.

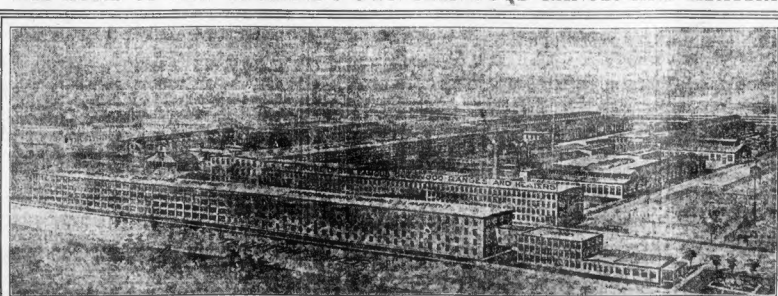

THERE are two things which every New England housewife insists on having—a good range and a good heating system. The happiness and comfort of her home depend on them more, perhaps, than on anything else that she uses in her housekeeping. And New England furnishes both.

Glenwood ranges and heaters have been made at Taunton since 1878. Two generations of New England craftsmen have taken pride in the making of them. Two generations of New England housewives have enjoyed greater ease, comfort and economy in their use.

Today there are sizes and models of Glenwood ranges and heaters for any home—for the smallest city apartment or the largest old-fashioned New England kitchen. They are sold today in almost every city and town in our six states. Get to know the Glenwood dealer in your neighborhood. He's a man you can depend on.

INVEST A DIME; YOU MAY WIN $500 AWARD

Chance for All With Keen Eyes to Share in New England Week Competition

Invest ten cents today on local products and tomorrow before Saturday night you may have earned $500.
For merely taking notes, as you walk about during New England Week.

Five hundred dollars is the "top"
award in the Boston American's 11-th New England Week Competition.
There are thirty-seven awards, to be paid in cash, for the largest lots of New England products seen in show windows, on shelves or in counters, during New England Week. The competition closes at midnight on Saturday night. The day of the week already is passing, but there still is ample time for persons with the "will to win" to enter this interesting competition and walk off with even the largest award.

TASK IS SIMPLE.

And it is all so very simple, so very easy.

The shops of New England are glad to help you with the products of New England. Every merchant in these six states is making a special showing of things made or grown in New England.

The purpose of New England
Week is not to "build a wall" about New England, to bring New Englanders to a point where they refuse to buy anything made or grown in other parts of the United States, but rather to call the attention of New Englanders to the excellence of the home product, to interest them, in a time of competitive industrial depression, in the well-being of New England manufacturers and New England workers.

Carrying on this work of popular education, the merchants of New England have staged for this week
a great Pageant of New England Industry. You see it everywhere, from Worcester, R. I., to Newport, Vt.; from Houlton, Me., down to Bridgeport, Conn.

THIRTY-SEVEN AWARDS OFFERED.

For the purpose of increasing and enhancing the popular interest in
New England Week, the Boston
American offers thirty-seven prizes, amounting to $1,700.

The first award is $500; the second, $200. In addition, there are thirty-five awards, amounting to $1,500.

And here is how to win the $500
award—one of the others.
Make a list of the New England products you see in the shops during New England Week. Mail it to the Boston American, P. O. 22, Boston, Mass., not later than midnight on Saturday.

Five lists are called for regarding each product. Here they are:

First, the trade-name of the product; if none, second, the name of the manufacturer or grower; third,
the name of the New England city or town in which it was made or grown; fourth, the name of the store in which you see it; fifth, the address of that store.

The entire problem is a few words.

A mere adventure in amateur reporting.

A matter of being observant, of keeping your eyes open, of taking a few longer glances.

The competition is wide open to every New Englander.

The first award of $500 will be sent for the largest lot of New England products seen by any one New England resident and reported according to the above conditions. Lists must be mailed not later than 12 o'clock, Saturday, on Saturday.

For the next largest lot, the Boston American will pay $200, also in cash. All the awards will be given in cash.

Each of the thirty awards may be sent to a member of any part of New England. Wherever you reside, in New England, either of the "great" lists may be yours for a little effort.

The thirty awards as has been said, are $100, $50, $20, $10, $5, $2, $1, $50, $20, $10, $5, $2, $1,
for each of five districts.

The districts are: First, Massachusetts; second, Maine; third, New Hampshire; fourth, Vermont; and fifth, Rhode Island and Connecticut combined.

For each of these districts the awards will be: First $100, second $50, third $20, fourth, the fifth, sixth and seventh $10, eighth, $5, ninth and tenth $2, and two hundred dollars to each district.

OPEN TO ALL.

There is one rule but no time limit. The rule is that you must furnish the information specified above.

Anyone may take part, whether or not he or she is a regular reader of the Boston American. There is no entrance fee. It is not necessary to notify this office that you intend to participate.

WILLS AND FERPO ARE FAILURES

HARVARD'S FOOTBALL FORCES OPEN PRACTICE FOR BIG YEAR

LOOK GOOD FOR SEASON

Harvard's football forces are to be marshalled on Soldiers Field today and the first several practices last year of 1924 men is expected to be successful ones.

Coach Fisher calls his men out for practice at 10 o'clock.

Harvard's prospects are not particularly alluring this fall, although if the coaches can build a workable rush line from the material on hand, the backfield may possess enough class to make the season a successful one.

Fifteen Harvard forwards bore the brunt of the battle in the mud against Yale last November, and only two of them are with the squad this fall, namely Captain Malt, Greenough, 300-pound center, and Heine Dunker, a husky lineman and track captain, both of whom were regulars.

The team will surely mix such boys as Charles Dalmann, Jack Evans and Tubby Gray, each of whom topped 150 pounds.

Behind the line conditions are not so good. Phil Coburn, defensive back, and Jimmie Lee, quarterback, but by no means the best of the signal snappers, are the backfield regulars.

Dolph Cheek and Jack Hamman, the other regulars, are available again and in fine condition.

FINE MATERIAL FOR TEAM.

To help this pair out are Erwin Gehrke, regular fullback two years ago, who has been out of college for a year; Nat Howe, a chunky half-back, who held first rating the first half of last season until injury put him out of commission; Lader Gerskov, who proved a wonderful freshman back and whose admirers are predicting he will be better than Eddie Mahan, and Al Miller, a husky tackle of Zachary's, on last year's freshman eleven.

The quarterback, Phil Spalding, with two Yale games for experience, and Joe McGilroy, who was second string last year, are available for another season. Spalding is the type of quarterback Harvard has generally lacked, to one who does little of the position's other duties.

NATICK WELL REPRESENTED.

McGilroy is a spirited type of player who can run and kick well, was handicapped by a leg injury last fall.

He is from Natick, the home of Ed MacMahon, Eddie Casey and Jimmy Murray. Harvard stars of the past. Nat Hamman, freshman point a year ago, and J. Edgar McGilroy, who was second string last year, will fill out the quarterback's duties.

Captain Greenough will probably be shifted from center to tackle to back up the line.

He has been hardening himself in the woods this summer, and weighs 150 pounds. Dunker may come back from guard to tackle, where he has had experience.

This is his third varsity year. Captain Inley of last year's freshmen; Gene Dunell, another husky lineman; "Buck" Kilgour, former Hill School man, and Clem Gaddy may be just the men Fisher can use on his forward line.

Inley is heavy and active, also rugged. Gaddy has the build and experience for line play.

SHEPPARD SAYS CHAPMAN MUST WEIGH 122

Johnny Sheppard, the Woburn bantam who defeated Ed Goldstein, champion of the world, and Joe Lynch, former champion, secured in his roadwork today to launch at Ed Chapman's claim to the title of Junior Featherweight Champion of the World.

"That's fine," said Johnny. "Let me into a ring with him and I'll knock him loose from two titles. He has the New England title and this new one. I'll open both the same night."

Rumor had had it that Chapman would be box Sheppard at Cambridge, which would give the Chelsea Hero a decided advantage, but the claiming of that junior title by Chapman means that he must scale 122 pounds for the Woburn tinker whenever a Boston matchmaker succeeds in getting the two together.

"That's our hope," said Paddy Mitchell, manager of Sheppard, when he heard the word. "We are starting on a western trip and this will mean a proper goodbye to Boston before we leave. Johnny's specialty is knocking out champions to the more title. Chapman claims the toughest for him and the better for us."

MORAN TO HAVE SQUAD OF SIXTY AT BUCKNELL

Lewisham, Pa., Sept. 15.—Work- ing with a squad of forty-eight men, Assistant Coach George and Inspector have been drilling Bucknell's 1924 football team in the fundamentals of the game.

The construction of a new tackling dummy apparatus is under way on the athletic field where the squad will work out preparatory to the opening of the gigantic new concrete stadium on Oct. 15, with Lafayette as opponent.

With the official opening of the season, Sept. 17, a number of freshmen are expected to report so that the squad that will be made up of thirty-five to forty men, and the large eleven, will have the early guidance of the Bucknell team in the hands of its assistants. He is expected to take over the reins about September 15.

LACEY CHANGES LINEUP FOR SECOND POLO GAME

Woburn, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Lacey is mobilizing his forces for one final thrust at the international polo title. The 15 to 5 defeat, suffered by the English harem against the American opposition, is now up to set the invading mallet wielders that a new British line will be presented to the spectators tomorrow, when the second game of the international series will be played at Meadowcroft.

Captain Louis Lacey of the British team announced that Lieutenant Colonel G. P. Mettill will replace Kirkwood at No. 1, Major Philipps-Hornby will replace Major P. N. Humdall at No. 2, while Major Humdall will replace Almon at No. 3. Captain Lacey, who bore the brunt of the English defense in the first game, will continue as back of the British team.

BROWNS CAST HUNGRY EYE ON HINKLE

St. Louis, Sept. 15.—If Lee Fohl and Bob Quinn, is anything around for picking material during the season, the Browns are not likely to be disappointed. They're not, but they will take a fancy to the Browns' present staff a trade between the two clubs may be made.

The fact that he will be in a receptive mood the moment the gates are locked on this season for trade proposals is not a new thing.

Board of Health

Man. Office

A New England Institution

SINCE its establishment by GEORGE BIRD in 1795, BIRD & SON, inc., has been closely identified with the growth and the industrial development of New England. Today BIRD & SON are the largest manufacturers in New England of felt, roofings, floor coverings, waterproof building papers and wall board.

This growth has been made possible by an unswerving devotion to the aims and ideals of the Founder on the part of the executives and their assistants, both men and women, in the manufacturing departments, in the offices and in the sales departments.

Not mere size nor quantity, however, but real New England quality has been the goal. The high regard for BIRD's Products which New England home owners have, is not due to the growth or the present magnitude of the BIRD & SON industries. Rather, the development of these industries has logically followed the public acknowledgment of the excellence of the products manufactured by BIRD & SON.

To insure a continuance of the high quality of their products, BIRD & SON, so far as possible, see that every process of manufacture takes place in their own plants, with New England machinery and New England employees. Even the asphalt which is used in such great quantities by these large Floor Covering and Roofing plants is refined right here in New England. When a thing is produced in New England, which can be used in the process of manufacture, it is used by BIRD & SON. It has long been a BIRD principle that everything possible shall be bought at home.

In the 129 years of its history, this concern has been directed by three generations of the same New England family. The many products manufactured by BIRD & SON have been continually improved until the familiar Nespet trade-mark is accepted everywhere as the sign of excellence of basic materials, scrupulous attention to manufacturing processes, and a tempering of all business relations with good will and old-fashioned New England honesty. Now, as in 1795, BIRD & SON are pledged to the high standards which have made possible past growth and which are an assurance of even greater development in the future—a development which is dedicated to the service of New England.

Why Dread Verdict of People on Supreme Court Power?

President Coolidge is alarmed—a mood unusual with him. He expresses fear that "the people will see their savings swept away and their children perish from want and hunger." If five eminent gentlemen sitting on the Supreme bench by life appointment are to be relieved of their veto power on American legislation.

Candidate Davis expresses similar fear. He does not, to be sure, see quite the same spectre of spoliation and starvation. His dread is lest a wave of radicalism should howl over the constitutional guarantees.

There is no judicial veto on legislation in Great Britain, where Mr. Davis lived for a time and of which Mr. Coolidge, of course, is aware.

And Great Britain, while it has hunger, has no more now under a Socialist Labor administration than it had before, and private property appears to be no less safe.

As for intolerance, that, alas, springs up from time to time. It is, perhaps, more common among the select and privileged persons than among the lowly.

The dispatches tell us that Messrs. Coolidge and Davis were aiming at Senator La Follette. If that is true, what is the provocation?

The La Follette platform contains only two references to the Supreme Court. One is a proposal that all Federal judges be elected by the people, without party designation, for terms not longer than ten years.

The other La Follette reference to the Supreme Court "favors submitting to the people, for their considerate judgment, a constitutional amendment providing that Congress may, by re-enacting a statute, make it effective over a judicial veto."

The proposal does not specify whether the re-enactment shall be by majority vote or by a two-thirds vote. Even the vetoes of a President are annulled by a two-thirds vote, as in the case of the soldiers' bonus.

The La Follette platform does not demand for Congress the same power to overrule Supreme Court decisions nullifying acts of Congress. It is simply intended to submit this proposition to the "people's considerate judgment." In a government "by the people" that would seem to be appropriate. Discussion of the wisdom of such a change would be more timely after the submission.

In all likelihood Senator La Follette's proposed method of curbing the power of the Supreme Court will not be adopted. But the need of a remedy for the present judicial autocracy is widely recognized. There is certainly nothing revolutionary about proposing to submit the particular remedy that shall be applied "to the considerate judgment" of the people. If we cannot confide in them, whom shall we trust?

$250 for a Cartoon

What's Your Suggestion?

The National League of Women Voters, believing that everybody ought to vote, will give $250 for the best cartoon rebuking the NON-VOTER. The cartoon must be NON-PARTISAN, it mustn't show Davis choking the poor labor man, or La Follette choking the poor money trust, or Coolidge keeping cool with himself. It must be a MORAL cartoon, urging careless people to vote, but not telling HOW to vote.

What is YOUR suggestion? How would it do, as a non-partisan effort, to have a picture of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin, all three together, kicking the non-voter about ten miles up into the air, and saying, "We took the trouble to GIVE you this country, you ought to appreciate it enough to vote and help manage it."

Would you say, perhaps, "If a man or woman does not care to vote, why force the vote upon such an indifferent voter? There is something in that."

The country should be managed by those that take interest in its government, and the best possible thing for a man to do when he isn't interested in his government is to keep away from the polling place and not meddle with those that think enough about the country to examine candidates and platforms and vote accordingly.

A good cartoon would show Nathan Hale saying, "I regret that I have but one life to give for my country," and the vote slacker staying away from the polls saying, "I regret that I haven't even ONE vote to give for my country."

Deadly Auto Drivers

Now that the great war is over, the most dangerous of all the foes of mankind is not the typhoid bacillus, liver complaint, heart disease or any of the other diseases that afflict mankind. The auto fiend now leads them all.

Whether or not liquor is killing more people under prohibition than it did in the days of the saloon, it is not killing so many as is the automobile. And 90 per cent. of the auto accidents are due to the carelessness, stupidity, self-indulgence or an exaggerated sense of self-importance on the part of drivers.

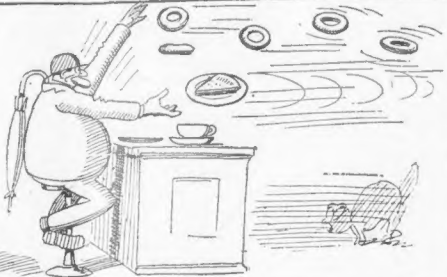

There are only three excuses for speeding—fire, accident and illness. The Fire Department and the physician, alone among human beings, have business so important that a speed on the highway of more than twenty-five miles an hour is necessary.

If we saw typhoid or influenza spreading at the same rate as the disease of auto fatalities, we should put the entire protective power of the city, police and health departments, at work to stamp out the epidemic.

Nothing but the same kind of drive will be successful against the auto peril. There are thousands of people, especially middle-aged and elderly people, driving automobiles who have no business to be on the highway assuming any such responsibility. We are going to need a stricter examination before licensing.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

EVERY now and then some man, some psychologist aware of the fact that woman is still a savage at heart.

She still likes things that dangle a her wrists, adorns a conquering war, adores a warrior, and in the end, she is a warrior, even if she has to leave him and drag him around.

And she still adores a warrior, even if she has to leave him and drag him around. She still adores a warrior, even if she has to leave him and drag him around.

With all her pretense to culture, she still delights to paint her face, decorate her head with feathers and hang ornaments in her ears.

Indeed, if it were "the smart thing to do" she would cheerfully go about with a ring in her nose. She's just a savage!

She still likes to display the gold in platinum band on her third finger as a sign of CONQUEST, not of marriage.

Oh, yes.

But no group of women ever yet shared themselves in fancy tea, strong, debatable, smiling, picture, gold hair and brass buttons, or do some fraternal orders, and

Husband Has Gone
Editor Helping Hand:
My husband has left me with three children. My little child, 5 years old, is just starting to school and she hasn't any clothes or shoes.

My husband is out of work and I can't do hard work. Perhaps I could get a warm, unfurnished room cheap. Do you know of any one who has a pair of shoes, size 4 1/2, or a winter coat, size 34?

Grateful to Unknown
Editor Helping Hand:
We want to thank you and your unknown reader and giver of the $10, which came just at a time when it looked the darkest for us.

My wife and I both work. God has some good people in this world. We thank you from the bottom of our hearts for what you have done for us, and thank a thousand times to the unknown giver.

Asks Gave Stove
Editor Helping Hand:
My husband is out of work and we are very much in need. If some kind person has an old gas range or a small stove, please let me know.

EDUCATION HELPED BY THE RADIO

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ACCORDING to Dr. A. Duncan Yukum, Professor of Educational Research of the University of Pennsylvania, the radio, the motion picture and the automobile have turned educational methods upside down.

"The average child," says Dr. Yukum, "who has a radio is gaining more of a knowledge of the world he lives in than was possessed by the well-educated man of fifty years ago. The children have grasped the scientific construction of the radio in a way that amazes their parents. What we, as parents, must do now is to teach them how to apply all of this mass of real experience that is coming into their lives. It has become our task to make the child articulate of the world about him."

Dr. Yukum recommended the "project method" to teachers, which consists in training the pupils to put into actual practice the scientific theories that have been explained to them. The project method develops the skill of the pupil by showing him how to make some practical article by scientific means. By this means a bewildering mass of details are made clear and the child gains a more complete understanding of the world about him.

Twenty-five years ago, Dr. Yukum said, the phrases which were used by educational writers were "training the mind," "mental discipline," and "strengthening the faculties." These phrases indicate a type of education involving school subjects and methods which have little or no bearing upon what the child needs to know in order to perform out in the world, or any problem which they will have to solve, or any undertaking in which they may be interested.

Education, however, that is designed to secure mental discipline according to the doctor, should take but slight account of the usefulness of any subject in dealing with the discipline is to be gained.

Those who are abandoning such phrases as those quoted above maintain that pupils should be required to acquire such knowledge and gain such experience as they will have use for in everyday life.

According to this fact, a pupil cannot do, outside of school, anything essentially different from that which he has done in school. Also he will accomplish more in the acquisition of knowledge and skill if he is interested in his tasks than if he is not interested in them and does not feel any desire to attack them.

More and more education is becoming a practical matter, something for the equipment for life and not a useless enthusiasm.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON AN EINSTEIN TEST

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS
THE National Museum in Washington possesses what is said to be the largest lopez in the world. It is a crystal over five inches in greatest diameter and weighs about six ounces. It is a crystal of silicon, a rare, unalloyed, siliceous substance, and is supposed to be a relic of the prehistoric period.

The difference has been illustrated by the fact that the particles of dust, which are placed in the stream of the crystal, are scattered in all directions. Now, if the crystal is placed in a stream of air, the particles of dust, which are placed in the stream, are scattered in all directions. Now, if the crystal is placed in a stream of air, the particles of dust, which are placed in the stream, are scattered in all directions.

Such being the case, it may be supposed that the particles of dust, which are placed in the stream of the crystal, are scattered in all directions. Now, if the crystal is placed in a stream of air, the particles of dust, which are placed in the stream, are scattered in all directions.

ONCE-OVERS

CURIOSITY IS FATAL TO FRIENDSHIP.

Because you have been given the "run of the house" does not give you the right to open doors and drawers and snoop into rooms other than the ones where your business or your life as a guest takes you.

If you want to show your breeding or the lack of it, just nose around in the house of others and then ask your friends if you find anything out of the ordinary. You might have been the feeling of your acquaintances if you had been less inquisitive.

There is no surer way to stamp yourself as either provincial or crude than this habit of nosing about or snoop into rooms of others in matters which are none of your business.

There are no many who are so stupid as to be so curious about the lives of others. If you are so curious, you are so stupid as to be so curious about the lives of others. If you are so curious, you are so stupid as to be so curious about the lives of others.
